Marketing & Enrollment Tips and Tricks

Business Academy Group Learning · Marketing & Enrollment · April 2027

Marketing doesn't have to be expensive. Most families find child care through word of mouth and online search, so start there.

Be easy to find

- Search for yourself. Look up your program online the way a parent would, and fix anything outdated.
- Claim free listings. Online business profiles and child care search sites are often free.
- Use photos carefully. Show your spaces and activities; get written permission before posting any child's photo.
- List the basics. Ages served, hours, location, openings, and whether you accept subsidy.

Turn inquiries into enrollments

- Respond within one business day. Speed matters; families often call several programs.
- Use a tour checklist. Cover safety, daily routine, communication, and next steps every time.
- Follow up. Send a thank-you message or call after every tour.
- Have an enrollment packet ready. Tuition, policies, forms, and a start date in one place.

Grow word of mouth

- Ask for reviews. Happy families are often glad to leave one when asked.
- Try a referral thank-you. A small tuition credit for referrals that enroll.
- Connect locally. Pediatricians, libraries, churches, and community groups can share your information.

Keep the families you have

- Communicate often. Short daily updates and regular check-ins build trust.
- Check in after the first month. Ask new families how things are going.
- Plan for transitions. Ask families about upcoming changes early so you can plan.

Manage a waitlist

- Keep it simple. Name, contact, child's age, start date wanted, date added.
- Update it regularly. Contact families every few months to confirm they're still interested.
- Call quickly when a spot opens. A ready list turns openings into enrollments fast.
