Contracts Tips and Tricks

Business Academy Group Learning · Contracts · June 2027

Contracts protect your income and help you avoid surprises. You don’t need to be a lawyer to read them well; you just need to know what to look for.

Strengthen your enrollment agreement

- Include the basics. Schedule, tuition, due dates, late fees, and start date.
- Set a notice period. Require written notice before a family withdraws.
- Link to your handbook. Families confirm they received and agree to your policies.
- Explain changes. Say how much notice you give before rate or schedule changes.
- Get signatures and keep copies. Give families a copy and keep yours on file.

Read vendor contracts carefully

- Find the total cost. Including setup fees and future price increases.
- Check the length. When does it start and end?
- Look for auto-renewal. Many contracts renew unless you cancel by a deadline.
- Know how to cancel. Notice period and any early termination fees.
- Ask questions before signing. If something is unclear, ask for it in writing.

Stay organized

- Use one tracker. Vendor, cost, end date, renewal terms, and cancellation notice.
- Set reminders. Calendar alerts 60 to 90 days before renewal or cancellation deadlines.
- Keep digital copies. Scan signed agreements and store them with a backup.

Know when to get help

- Leases and loans. Have a qualified professional review them before signing.
- Employee or contractor? Ask a tax professional if you’re unsure how to classify someone.
- Disputes. Get advice early if a family or vendor disagreement is growing.

Shop around

- Compare quotes. Get two or three quotes for big services.
- Ask about shared services. The VSSN platform may offer group discounts on common vendors.

General guidance only, not legal or tax advice. Consult a qualified professional before signing leases, loans, or other high-stakes agreements.
